15 sue over blasting operations

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

INEZ — A lawsuit was filed Monday on behalf of 15 residents in the Hardin Bottom and Coldwater Road areas of Martin County for alleged damages to their property from blasting activities connected to highway construction project.

Attorneys John Kirk and Jeff Hinkle filed the suit in Martin Circuit Court on behalf of 12 Hardin Bottom residents and three Coldwater Road residents against Kokosing Construction Company of Westerville, Ohio, and Brandywine Explosives & Supply company of Paris for alleged damages to their homes and properties from blasting connected to the construction of the new highway.

Both locations are reportedly in close proximity of the blast area, which has sent boulders into the parking area at Sheldon Clark High School, according to the suit.

The suit also alleges that prior to the blasting actions of Kokosing Construction and Brandywine Explosives & Supply companies, "Hardin Bottom was a tranquil, peaceful and safe environment

Martin County students to return to classroom next week

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

INEZ — Martin County students are scheduled to return to the classroom next Wednesday after an extended summer vacation as the local school board voted to close Sheldon Clark High School and move high school students to Inez Middle School.

The board decided to merge Inez and Warfield middles into Warfield Middle and to make Inez Middle School the new high school. With both Inez and Warfield consolidated into the same building, the new name is to be Martin County Middle School, and Inez Middle will become Sheldon Clark High School.

The district employed Servpro, normally used when there is a disaster such as flooding or fire, to help move items to and from each school.

Servpro moved Inez Middle School items to Warfield Friday and then began moving items from SCHS to Inez Middle School on Monday. Some of the surplus items will be stored inside the closed high school building.

New Superintendent Steve Meadows said that it was a risk management decision to hire a company to

THE MARTIN COUNTY School District hired Servpro to move all the items from Inez Middle School to Warfield Middle School, and that job was done Friday. On Monday, crews began to move all items from Sheldon Clark High School to Inez Middle School, and they are expected to be completely finished by Aug. 15 or 16.

State lawmakers to tackle redistricting issue again

by Tony Fyffe
BSN MANAGING EDITOR

FRANKFORT — State lawmakers will return to Frankfort Monday for the start of a special session of the General Assembly to address the ever-controversial issue of redistricting.

Republican leaders in the state House last week released their legislative redistricting plan for the lower chamber, while their Democratic counterparts are modifying a bill that passed in the House earlier this year but was not taken up in the Senate.

The Republican proposal, announced at a news conference Thursday at the state Capitol, would give Lawrence County a new representative in the state House. The chamber's majority floor leader, Democrat Rocky Adkins, currently represents Lawrence County, but the GOP plan would pit Adkins against incumbent Kevin Sennette in the 100th District, which includes all of Boyd County.

Under the Republican proposal, Lawrence County would be moved to the 93rd District, which currently is represented by Democrat Keith Hall of Phelps. The district would also include Martin County and part of Pike County.

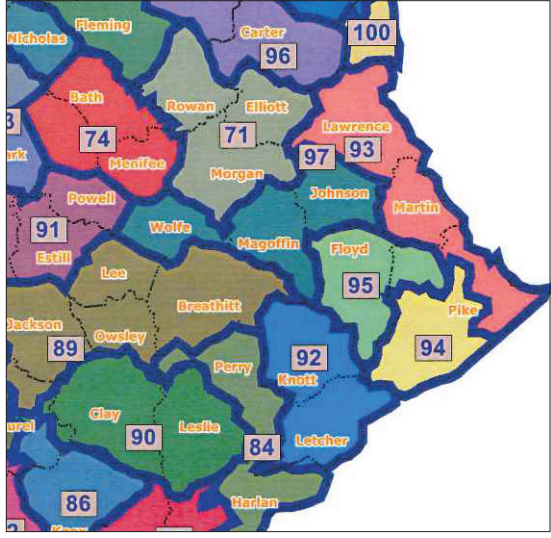

Martin County is presently in the 97th District, represented by Democrat Hubert Collins of Wittensville, along with Johnson County and parts of Floyd and Pike counties. Under the Republican proposal, however, the 97th District would be made up of Johnson, Magoffin and Wolfe counties. Magoffin County is presently in the 92nd District and represented by Democrat John Short of Mallie.

The 95th District, represented by House Speaker Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg, currently includes all but a few precincts in Floyd County. Under the GOP plan, the district would also include some parts of Pike County.

During the regular session of the General Assembly earlier this year,

SUIT: Additional claims added in amended case

Klein of the Department of Justice's civil division say they would not intervene in "this action with respect to the allegations at paragraphs 71-79" of the amended complaint, which was filed June 26 and unsealed Aug. 30 against former Social Security administrative law judge David B. Daugherty and Stanville attorney Eric C. Conn.

"For all other allegations, the United States refers and incorporates its Notice Of the United States That It Is Not Intervening At This Time," the attorneys said.

The initial lawsuit, which was filed under seal last October and unsealed Feb. 19 in U.S. District Court at Pikeville, seeks to "recover fraudulently obtained disability benefits and attorneys' fees paid by the United States of America to Eric C. Conn and Eric Conn, P.S.C."

"The disability benefits and attorneys' fees obtained by Conn which are the subject of this qui tam all originate from a fraudulent scheme coordinated between Conn and a social security administrative law judge named David B. Daugherty," the suit says. "The fraudulent scheme involved Daugherty wrongfully taking control of a high number of Conn's clients' Social Security disability claims from randomly assigned administrative law judges and conducting sham proceedings, resulting in the Conn clients overwhelmingly and fraudulently obtaining successful results. For example, during fiscal year 2010 Daugherty approved 99.7% of all Social Security claims while the national average of successful claims were approximately 62%. The fraudulent scheme resulted in millions of dollars in fraudulently obtained attorneys fees to Conn."

Conn has offices in Stanville and Ashland, and his Web site touts his business as "America's Law Firm."

The suit, filed by two Social Security Administration (SSA) employees, says Conn violated the federal False Claims Act. Daugherty is also named as a defendant.

Additional allegations are contained in the amended complaint. Paragraphs 71-79 that the justice department attorneys referred to allege that Conn's medical experts provided false or fraudulent testimony in Social Security cases Conn filed on behalf of his clients.

"In fact, for many, if not most of the Conn Claims, the letters described in Paragraph 71 were false or fraudulent in that the consulting physician or psychologist's review of records and/or examination of the claimant was perfunctory or nonexistent, in contradiction to the letters' description," the amended complaint says.

Conn has denied the allegations and said in a statement issued in February that the government's decision not to intervene proves the allegations are not true.

"I can certainly say I have always tried to represent my clients in the best and most appropriate way possible within all the laws and rules," Conn said in the statement. "It is noteworthy that the U.S. Government studied this lawsuit for a year and a half and decided not to join it or get involved."

charged with theft by unlawful taking under $10,000.

Attorney Greg Griffith was appointed to represent McGinty.

According to his indictment, on or about July 22, 2012, McGinty allegedly took a 2005 Ford Explorer owned by Jay D. Kirk of Kermit, W.Va., with a value exceeding $500.

The Kirks were reportedly utilizing facilities at Yatesville Lake State Park, where they met McGinty, who used his real name but alleged that he was a 10th-grade history teacher from Kansas. He said that his mother had been diagnosed with breast cancer and hadn't been able to afford mammograms, so he wanted to raise money to help others.

McGinty alleged to the Kirks and others in the park that he was riding cross country on a bicycle from North Dakota on his way to Hollywood, Fla., in an effort to raise money for the cause and even said he was going to be on "The Today Show" and "Good Morning America."

McGinty spent a few days at the campsite and even participated in cookouts and gospel singing, the Kirks said.

McGinty left in the middle of the night and took the couple's vehicle but was picked up in Orange County, Fla., during a routine traffic stop after the officer ran his name and found it listed on the National Crime Information Center (NCIC) as being wanted in connection with the stolen vehicle in Kentucky.

Kentucky State Police in Ashland listed the vehicle on the NCIC, the vehicle was recovered and McGinty was charged with third-degree grand theft auto.

area, according to the statement.

Prison officials took the two adults and a juvenile girl to another part of the prison, reading the adults their Miranda rights.

In a second case, Lashell Irene Epperson, Levon D. Lee and Antoine Boyce were indicted on charges of conspiring to possess with intent to distribute heroin at the prison.

In addition, Epperson is charged with trying to provide the heroin to Lee and Boyce, who were inmates at the USP

Big Sandy and are also charged in the indictment.

Court records show that USP Big Sandy officials were tipped off by representatives at a federal prison in Maryland that Epperson would be attempting to bring drugs to an inmate at the Martin County facility.

When Epperson arrived at USP Big Sandy on July 6, prison officials searched her vehicle and found "two small baggies of (an) unidentified dark brown substance wrapped in a cream rubber material" in a glasses case in the trunk. The substance later tested positive for heroin, the statement said.

the House passed the Democratic redistricting plan, which wasn't acted on by the Senate.

"We're modifying the plan approved earlier this year, but nothing has been finalized yet," Brian Wilkinson, spokesman for House Speaker Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg, told The Big Sandy News in an e-mail Thursday after the GOP plan was unveiled. "We don't have a set timetable yet, but we'll be ready to go when the special session begins on Aug. 19th."

The bill would have put all of Lawrence County into the 100th House District, would have also included part of Boyd County.

Other House districts in the Big Sandy region would not have changed drastically under the Democratic proposal.

The 97th District would have included Johnson and Martin counties and part of Pike County.

The 95th District would have consisted of all of Floyd County and part of Pike County.

‘Virtual job fairs’ scheduled Aug. 15

Kentuckians seeking legitimate work-from-home jobs they can do online will soon have hundreds of new opportunities thanks to a partnership between Kentucky Teleworks and a national call-center telesales company. And they won’t even have to leave their homes to be considered and possibly hired for those jobs. On Thursday, Aug. 15, Kentucky Teleworks will host two “virtual job fairs” for American Support, a call center vendor that provides inbound and outbound telesales for some of the nation’s largest companies. The sessions, which will be held at 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., will allow people to access a special Web site through their home computer to learn about American Support and apply for jobs with the company. To register and obtain the Web address for the virtual job fair sessions, people should contact Kentucky Teleworks director Joshua Ball at 606-435-8498 or via email at jball@kyteleworks.com.

“American Support is offering a unique opportunity with these virtual job fairs because they are recruiting workers for both experienced and entry-level telework positions,” Ball said. “For a person simply looking for a new challenge, American Support provides a unique opportunity to not only work, but also acquire world-class training that provides unlimited opportunities for advancement in the virtual workplace.”

American Support’s work-from-home positions include both full-time and part-time inbound and outbound sales. Pay starts at $8.50 per hour with the possibility of bonuses and commissions.

Full-time teleworkers also have access to health and dental insurance, 401K retirement plans, and paid time off.

Participants in the Aug. 15 Kentucky Teleworks virtual job fairs will be expedited through American Support’s application process pending the successful completion of computer and Internet connectivity tests, Ball said.

Applicants who successfully complete those tests will be interviewed for jobs within 24-48 hours.

Staff with American Support will lead the virtual job fairs and give applicants a detailed overview of the jobs, benefits, and computer and Internet access requirements.

If the upcoming events prove successful, Ball said Kentucky Teleworks is considering hosting similar virtual events for the company on a monthly basis.

“The company hired 250 new telework employees in July alone, and we’re hoping to help them find hundreds more through Kentucky Tele-works,” Ball said. For more information about Kentucky Teleworks, visit www.kentuckyteleworks.com; call Josh Ball at (606) 435-8498, or e-mail jball@kyteleworks.com.

SCHOOL: Students to return next Wednesday move the schools based on the reduction of liability issues as determined after speaking to insurance agents and adjusters.

“It just wasn’t an efficient idea to try to move ourselves, nor to ask for parent volunteers to help,” Meadows said. “One claim of an injury or a vehicle accident would have paid for the cost of the movers, and we want to be able to get the kids in class as quickly and efficiently as we can. We had two quotes, and one was for $80,000 and the other was just under $100,000. They are on track to be finished moving by Aug. 15 or 16, and the teachers should have about a day or a day and a half to go in and polish things up the way they want. We are actually ahead of schedule and below budget, so that is good.”

Since high school students will be downsizing, not all of the sporting and academic trophies will fit inside the area designated at Inez Middle School and only a portion of them will be relocated. Girls basketball coach Robin Newsome was at the school early Monday morning to itemize all the trophies onto a list and to insure that the desired trophies would be shipped on to the new location for display.

“Eventually, the trophies will go back on display when we get a new high school,” Newsome said.

“We have vacated the SCHS facility, but the board has left the door open on what we will ultimately do with it,” Meadows said. “I know that we won’t be going into this year. The fact is that as we exist today, the facilities that we are in, excluding SCHS, will serve the population in Martin County. There are some things that we are going to work on right away and one is the cafeteria. It is not designed, nor will it support the number of students. We are for now going to use the gym for an overflow, but we are going to work on that too. If the grade span is 9-12 and we stay in the Inez building, we are also going to have to provide them with a gym because right now, they don’t have one that is regulation size. We are also going to renovate one building, taking two very large classrooms and dividing them to make more classrooms.”

Board members made the decision to close the school because of reports from inspectors saying they “believe the structure has questionable adequacy to resist a significant wind, or seismic event,” and the continued blasting with rocks falling onto the parking lot was too much of a risk to students.

located off the main road along Coldwater Creek near Inez where residents cherish their safe, rural and peaceful life.”

The lawsuit also alleges that the plaintiffs lived near the mountain where the blasting rock and defendants’ blasting activities caused fly-rock and boulders to come onto their homes and properties.

The suit alleges that the defendants’ actions in causing numerous rocks to fly onto their property and onto SCHS show an “egregious and unconscionable disregard for the welfare and safety” of the property owners, their children and students at SCHS.

The suit also alleges that the defendants’ “intentional disregard” for the safety and property rights of the plaintiffs constitutes “gross negligence” for which punitive damages are appropriate.

“This does not seem real,” Kirk said in a press release regarding the lawsuit. “It just does not seem real. Where have we ever before seen a school have to close over something like this? Hardin Bottom is very close to SCHS and both places have been hit hard. These are my neighbors at Hardin Bottom and Sheldon Clark is our high school from which both our children graduated.”

Plaintiffs in the suit are Roy Bryant, Howard Blackburn, Sue Blackburn, John Brown, Shirley Endicott, Ricky Endicott, Christine Maynard, Lewis Maynard, Ada Hardin, Sheila Maynard, Marcella Crum, Thomas Johnson, Donald Ray Fraley, Daisy Fraley and Darrell Fraley.

Editor’s note: A lawsuit represents only the plaintiffs’ cause for action.

Man arrested after ATV wreck

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

INEZ — An Inez man was arrested after wrecking an ATV into a rock wall, police said.

Tommy Evans, 35, is charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol or drugs etc. (aggravating circumstance), driving on a DUI-suspended license (aggravating circumstance), operating an ATV on the roadway, leaving the scene of an accident-failure to render aid or assistance.

He was also served with four active Martin County bench warrants issued for driving on a DUI-suspended license (aggravating circumstance), operating an ATV on the roadway, resisting arrest and operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol or drugs (aggravating circumstances).

According to the arrest report, Martin County sheriff’s deputy Daniel Muncy responded to a complaint that an ATV had struck a rock wall, and eyewitnesses reported seeing Evans take off and park the ATV at the Inez Pawn Shop.

Muncy was able to locate the ATV, and Evans’ wife, who lives upstairs, agreed to let Muncy and deputy Bryan Tipton search her apartment, the report said.

Evans was located hiding in the pantry with “pin point eyes that were glossy and blood shot,” the report said. Evans also reportedly had slurred speech.

Due to officer safety, the report said Evans was placed in handcuffs prior to any other standard field sobriety tests.

Two eyewitnesses confirmed Evans was the person driving the ATV, the report said.

Evans was transported to the Big Sandy Regional Detention Center in Johnson County.

Fire station burglarized

by Lilly Adkins
ASSOCIATE EDITOR

PIGEON ROOST — An estimated $30,000 or more in firefighting equipment, tools and electronics were stolen from the Pigeon Roost Fire Department building sometime Monday Aug. 12.

Department members are asking for help to recover the items and to bring the parties responsible for the break-in to justice.

The estimated number also reflects damages to the building, including broken bay doors, a lock ripped from the door pane to gain entrance, and damage to a door in back.

Missy Alley, wife of Warfield Fire Chief Greg Alley, said that they discovered the building had been broken into when Alley's son, Alex, went to the location to retrieve a refrigerator and bring it to the Warfield station after the one they had been using stopped working.

"We had been up there a couple of days earlier, because of a house fire, and it was fine then, and Ronnie Joe (WVFD member as well as a volunteer deputy) said he was there the day before and he didn't see anything," Alley said. "They are working on making a complete list of all the items that are missing. From the wheel base of the vehicle that pulled up there, you could tell it had to be at least a full-size truck. We don't have the complete list of everything yet, but some of it will have Pigeon Roost on it or PRVFD or Warfield Fire (WVFD). We just want to make sure we get the word out so that if someone is trying to sell them some of the equipment, they will recognize it and possibly help us get the stuff back. They took a lot of expensive items and we are also contacting the other fire departments to let them know to be on the look out for it too. I am also sure that some of the equipment, they might even try to scrap. Right now we need all the help we can get."

Alley said some of the missing items include a flat screen television that was used for training, a DVD player, hoses and brass couplings, radios, gasoline, light bars, nozzles, an air compressor, battery chargers and miscellaneous other tools.

Anyone with information regarding the incident or missing items is urged to contact the Kentucky State Police at (606) 433-7711, the Martin County Sheriff's Office at (606) 298-2828, 911 or the Warfield Volunteer Fire Department.

Floyd sheriff's audits released

FRANKFORT — State Auditor Adam Edelen noted no instances of noncompliance by Floyd County Sheriff John K. Blackburn in three audits released Monday.

Edelen Monday released audits of the sheriff's settlement, the 2011 gas and oil tax settlement and the 2011 unmined coal tax settlement.

State law requires the auditor to annually audit the accounts of each county sheriff. In compliance with this law, the auditor issues two sheriff's reports each year: one reporting on the audit of the sheriff's tax account and the other reporting on the audit of the fee account used to operate the office.

The audits found that the Floyd County sheriff's financial statement fairly presents the taxes charged, credited and paid, for the periods April 16, 2011 through April 16, 2012, May 16, 2011 through May 15, 2012, and July 16, 2011 through August 15, 2012, in conformity with the modified cash basis of accounting.

The auditor noted no instances of noncompliance. The auditor also noted no matters involving internal control over financial reporting and its operation that were considered to be material weaknesses.

The sheriff's responsibilities include collecting property taxes, providing law enforcement and performing services for the county fiscal court and courts of justice. The sheriff's office is funded through statutory commissions and fees collected in conjunction with these duties.

The audit reports can be found on the auditor's Web site.

5 simple steps to a faster computer

by Kim Komando

Kim Komando hosts the nation's largest talk radio show about consumer electronics, computers and the Internet.

One of the best things about a new computer is the speed. It boots fast, opens programs like a dream and generally doesn't leave you checking your watch.

Of course, the longer you use a computer, the slower it gets. It's tempting to buy a new computer or call a professional, but I wouldn't just yet. You can get back most of the speed with a few free tricks. They're simple enough for anyone to do, and your wallet will thank you.

Before going on, I'm going to bring up one caveat. If you're using a Windows XP computer, plan to get a new one soon. XP's end of life is coming up on April 8, 2014. It's already lacking newer security features. It will only get less secure once Microsoft stops releasing security updates.

1. Speed up your startup

The most annoying computer slowdown for most people is startup. Even new computers can take a few minutes to start. After years of use, it can seem like hours.

Your computer spends much of that time starting third-party programs. Security software, printer software and driver updaters are just a few examples. The frustrating part is that many of these don't need to run at startup.

Autoruns is a freebie that can help reduce the load. It finds and disables unneeded programs so they don't slow you down. But it won't stop important startup processes, like security software.

Startup Delayer is a good program if you want more control. You can tell what programs to start when. That way, they're not fighting for system resources.

If you have a Windows 7 or 8 computer, you might invest in a solid-state hard drive. These are much faster than conventional hard drives. It can bring your startup times to well under a minute.

SSDs are still small and expensive - a 128 gigabyte SSD costs $110 to $150 - but that's less than a new computer. Before you put down any money, however, read on.

2. Clean the clutter

Another thing that slows down your computer is a cluttered hard drive.

In the past, you had to worry about a full hard drive. Thanks to modern large-capacity drives, filling the space isn't easy.

Still, even coming close can slow down your system. So, if you have less than five gigabytes of free space, it's time to clean.

Use a free disk-visualizing program such as WinDirStat to see what applications and files are taking up the most space. Move space-hogging files you need to an external drive and delete the ones you don't.

Grab Revo Uninstaller to thoroughly remove any programs you don't use anymore. Zap unused trial software and other unwanted bloatware with PC Decrapifier.

Even if you have plenty of space, clutter can still slow things down. Plenty of programs create temporary files they have to sort through later. Get rid of

FOUR BIG SANDY Area Community Action Program Workforce Investment Act (WIA) career advisors participated in Global Career Development Facilitator (GCDF) graduation ceremonies on Friday, July 12. Three from county are certified PAINTSVILLE — The Johnson County School District's Charles Holbrook, Harry Burchett and Mike Whitaker achieved professional certifications designed to provide and test skills needed to support teachers and students in today's computer-based world and education environment.

Holbrook, Burchett and Whitaker earned Apple Certified Support Professional (ACSP) and Apple Certified Technical Coordinator (ACTC) certifications after two weeks of extensive training and passing two industry examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of the skills taught.

"With a full understanding of what these computers can do and how we can efficiently manage them in the schools, I feel better prepared to help teachers take full advantage of the extensive technology that we have in the district," said Burchett.

Dataseam offers the certification sessions as part of a comprehensive training and professional development program for Kentucky schools. Dataseam is a unique Kentucky company that provides computers to Johnson County and other school districts in coal-producing counties. The school computers are linked together into one of the world's largest computing grids to help research at the University of Louisville's James Graham Brown Cancer Center discover new potential cancer drugs.

Today's jobs demand that workers can locate, organize, understand, evaluate and create information using technology. Dataseam trains Kentucky educators to help them acquire these digital literacy skills, which are as fundamental for students in the 21st Century as reading, writing, and arithmetic.

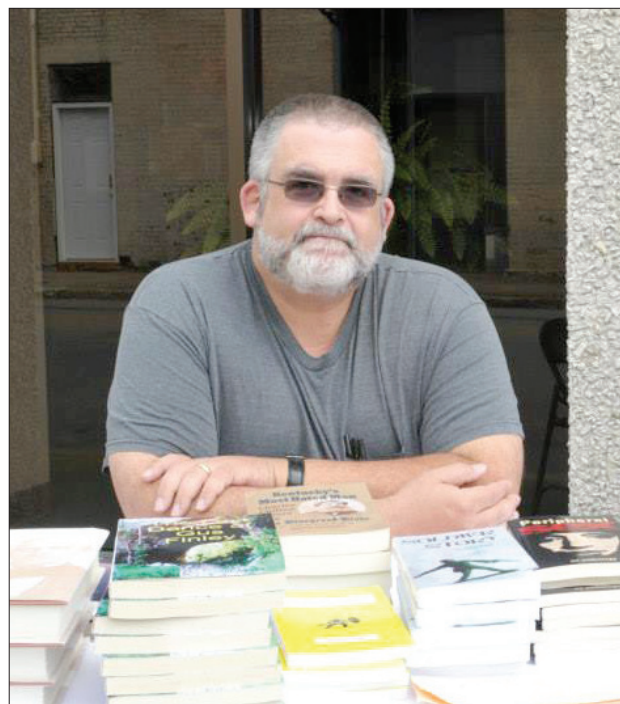

"Effective use of technology and digital tools is pivotal to each child's future success - in jobs ranging from advanced manufacturing to the scientific research that will cure disease," said Dataseam CEO Brian Gupton. "Empowering educators and students to make the most of the tools in front of them is key to Kentucky's odds for economic prosperity, and Dataseam is proud to do its part to increase our chances for success."

Superintendent Steve Trimble said, "Mr. Holbrook, Mr. Burchett and Mr. Whitaker's hard work to gain this level of professional expertise ensures that the investment we make in technology for our students is maximized. We need to take advantage of every opportunity for our students and teachers to benefit from the best and newest technology."

As a participating partner, Johnson County participates in a range of education and training programs with Dataseam, www.kydataseam.com.

Sparks to speak at library

PAINTSVILLE — Johnson County Public Library, together with the Kentucky Humanities Council Speakers Bureau, will present Hager Hill native John Sparks speaking on the topic "Charles Chilton Moore: Barton Stone's Grandson and Kentucky's Most Hated Man" at the library at 444 Main Street in Paintsville Tuesday, Aug. 20, at 6 p.m.

temporary files with the free program CCleaner.

You might have duplicate music or photo files clogging up your programs. Use a program like CloneSpy or VisiPics to remove them quickly.

3. Pick up the pieces

Files on a hard drive aren't like files in a filing cabinet. On a hard drive, files become fragmented. Bits and pieces of them get scattered around the drive. This increases the time your computer takes to open them.

That's why there are defragmenting programs. These assemble the pieces so they're easier to find.

With Windows Vista, 7 and 8 this isn't such a big deal anymore. They run the built-in defragmenter automatically on a schedule.

To check when it runs, go to Start, or go to the Start Screen in Windows 8. In the search bar, type "defrag" (minus quotes). This will either bring up the defragmenter program or a list where you can select it.

Check when it ran last and when it's scheduled to run. Usually it's set for early morning. If your computer isn't usually on then, change it to a different time. You can also run it manually.

In Windows XP, you'll have to run the defragmenter manually. Open My Computer and right-click on your main drive. Then choose Properties.

Go to the Tools tab and choose Defragment Now, then click Defragment. It will take a while, so sit back and relax.

One exception to defragging is if you have a solid-state hard drive. These work in a different way and don't have this problem. In fact, running a defragmenter on an SSD will shorten its life. Windows 7 and 8 will detect an SSD and turn off defragmenting automatically.

4. Boost your browsing

Your computer runs fast, but loading websites leaves you twiddling your thumbs. What gives?

First, make sure you're getting the Internet speed you paid for. The free service Speedtest will give you the real scoop on your Internet connection.

If you suspect the problem is in your wireless network, you can tweak your router's settings to eliminate hang-ups and bottlenecks. Click here for instructions.

If your wireless signal is weak or your home has dead spots, try putting your router in a central location. Also, move it away from walls and metal objects. Click here for more tricks to boost your Wi-Fi.

It might turn out that it isn't your connection, but your browser. On Vista or 7, the fix for that could be as simple as upgrading Internet Explorer to version 9 or higher. Do this from Start>>Control Panel>>Windows Update.

On XP, you won't have this option. Instead, ditch IE entirely for the newer, more nimble Fire fox or Chrome. Both of these are fast and secure.

Not sure what browser you're using? Visit What Browser Am I Using? to find out.

Getting rid of unneeded browser toolbars, like Babylon, will also speed things up. These often come attached to free software. You can remove these manually in the browser add-on settings, or use a program like Toolbar Cleaner.

5. Remove pesky viruses

Speaking of unwanted programs, viruses can seriously slow down your system. They might be busy recording everything you do, or sending out spam.

Combat malware with up-to-date security software. AVG and Avast! are two good free options. I also recommend Malwarebytes for manual scanning and removal.

The worst viruses will block you from installing security software. In that case, grab a rescue CD like AVG Rescue CD. This runs outside your operating system so viruses don't have a chance.

Morgan Skaggs 1934-2013

LAWRENCE COUNTY — God gained another great man in the early hours of Sunday, Aug. 11, as his Angels swooped down and took Morgan Skaggs quickly and quietly. Morgan had been waiting patiently the past few days for that journey. He was of the Baptist faith, and had professed his readiness to go "home".

Morgan was born on the Skaggs family farm at Martha, to the late Arnold T. and Margaret Jane Wright Skaggs, on Oct. 27, 1934.

In addition to his parents he was preceded in death by two sisters, Mary Ella Skaggs and Esta Vanover; and a brother, James Luther Skaggs.

He is survived by a sister, Magalene (Carl Ed) Tackett of White House; and a brother, Ora Franklin (Doty) Skaggs of Philpot.

On Jan. 25, 1958, Morgan married his life-long partner, Nola Mae Sparks. They continued to work side-by-side for nearly 46 years. She preceded him in death on Dec. 5, 2003.

Morgan and Nola Mae were the proud parents of four children, whom they instilled their hard work ethics, high morals and values in; two daughters, Kay (Robert) Ison and Jennifer (Mark) Hardin, both of Louisa; and two sons that lived on the family farm with him, Gary Morgan (LaWanda) Skaggs and James Richie (Pam) Skaggs. Morgan also had four grandchildren that were extremely important to him, Travis Kyle Ison, Jessica Mae (Cody) Johnson, and Markus Colten-Morgan Hardin of Louisa, along with James Anthony Skaggs of Martha. Recently his first great-grandchild, Silver Abbagail Rayne Johnson was born, and he was able to enjoy a few visits with her.

Morgan spent his entire life on the family farm where he learned his hard-work ethics at an early age. By the time he was eight years old he could drive their team of oxen that was used in the family lumber business. Most of his work in the lumber business was done with a special team of mules. Morgan continued the practice of hard work on the farm until a few short months ago. Once he realized he would be unable to work the fields this summer he said, "Why can't I just go on? I am of no use now. I am ready to go."

Morgan was the fourth generation to accept the reins to the family farm that was established prior to 1885 and will continue to thrive as the reins have now passed to the fifth generation. In addition to his own farm, Morgan has either plowed the soil or harvested hay from nearly every farm in rural western Lawrence County. For many years Morgan did his farm work with equipment pulled by his well-trained team of mules. Morgan took great pride in his crops always striving to produce the best. In addition to hay, he was a tobacco farmer from his youth until just the recent years. He also tried his hand at mass producing bell peppers for a few years.

During his younger adult years, Morgan worked in the oil-fields in both Lawrence and Johnson counties. Some of this time was spent working alongside his father and sometimes with his brothers.

In 1974, Morgan added another job to his list when he joined the staff of Lawrence County Schools as a bus driver. He continued to drive the bus until he retired in 1992.

Morgan was a very private, humble and caring person who had great compassion for his fellow man, neighbors and community members. This was evidenced by his willingness to always help them out. Morgan was the go-to man for hay baler repair as he was a self-taught expert on baler repair and would travel to wherever someone would request his expertise and would never accept any compensation for services. Also, he would be one of the first on the scene with his tools to assist with servicing graves for neighbors, family, and community friends, as this was another of his expert skills.

His children and grandchildren have been left with the tremendous task of carrying on Morgan's legacy of hard work, dedication, and humbleness. In addition to his children and grandchildren, Morgan leaves behind numerous nieces, nephews, and cousins to cherish his memory.

Morgan's nephew, Rev. Billy Joe Sparks, and the Rev. Paul E. Keaton will conduct the Celebration of Morgan's life, 11 a.m., today, Wednesday, Aug. 14, at Elizabeth Baptist Church, Martha. Visitation will be 9:30 a.m., Wednesday at the church. Morgan will be laid to rest on the family farm at the Arnold T. Skaggs Family Cemetery, Coal Creek. Friends and family are invited to a reception at the church following his burial to share stories and celebrate Morgan's life, under direction of Young Funeral Home, Louisa.

Jude vying for playing time in ECU backfield

RICHMOND — The Eastern Kentucky University football team logged preseason practice number six on a humid Wednesday afternoon at the Presnell practice facility.

The Colonels held a media day event before practice on Wednesday. Head coach Dean Hood met with the media an hour before practice while several players took part in interviews on the field.

Hood noted that the running back position is still wide open at this point. "There is a lot of competition out there," Hood said. "If we have one player that rises up like Matt Denham, then he'll be the guy. If not, if everyone is doing well, we will go about it that way. They all have different skill sets." Junior Caleb Watkins entered camp number one on the depth chart, but redshirt freshmen JJ. Jude, Thomas Owens Jared Sanders are certainly in the mix.

ECU put on full pads for the first time on Tuesday, Aug. 6. In one of the more popular drills, "seven-on-seven inside run," Jude made some noise when he snuck through the middle of the offensive line and past all seven defenders on one of his runs.

There are very few players in different positions this summer. After being moved to defensive back in the spring, sophomore Jaucady Rutledge is back at wide receiver. He may be utilized on kick and punt returns as well. Senior Ike Ariguzo, who normally lines up at wide receiver, has taken some reps at tight end to give the Colonels more flexibility at that position.

This may be the best front seven on defense that Coach Hood has fielded in his six years as ECU head coach. Key seniors Shawn Shupperd and David Carter fill the defensive line while fellow seniors Anthony Brown and Ichiro Vance return to the line-backer unit.

ECU kicks off the 2013 schedule with a Thursday night home opener against Robert Morris on Aug. 29. This will mark the first season opener at home and on a Thursday night since 1993.

Mason Rudolph Championship, which is hosted by Vanderbilt University.

Kentucky then travels to Norman, Okla., for the Scholastic Fall Classic on Oct. 5-7, before wrapping up the fall slate on the West Coast in the Stanford Invitational from Oct. 25-27.

The spring season will begin with the UCF Challenge in Orlando, Fla., Feb. 9-11. UK is very familiar with the UCF Challenge, having played in the tournament two of the last three years, including a fourth-place finish in 2011. After nearly a month off, the Wildcats head to Hilton Head, S.C., for the Daris Rucker Intercollegiate from March 7-9. The three-day tour-namment will be held at the Long Cove Club.

The Cats then return to Baton Rouge, La., for a fourth consecutive year at the LSU Tiger Golf Classic March 21-23. Former Wildcat Ashleigh Albrecht led UK with a top 10 finish in a tie for seventh place last season. To conclude the spring season, Kentucky will compete in the Rebel Intercollegiate in Oxford, Miss., April 4-6.

Postseason play begins April 18 and runs through April 20 for the SEC Championship at Greystone Golf & Country Club in Birmingham, Ala. Kentucky will look to build off a fifth-place finish in last season's SEC Championship. NCAA Regional action runs May 8-10 at three different sites. The East Regional will be hosted by Florida State, Oklahoma State hosts the Central Regional and the University of Washington hosts the West Regional. The NCAA Championships will take place in Tulsa, Okla., May 20-23.

Kentucky's squad features one senior, two sophomores and three freshmen under Borst, as the Wildcats will look to build off three top-five finishes from a year ago and a 12th place finish in the NCAA Regionals.
